The OHIO ALUMNUS

November - 1946

From the Editor's Desk . . .

FRIENDS As these words are written fairly definite election returns indicate that Thomas J. Herbert will become the next governor of Ohio, succeeding Frank J. Lausche.

Ohio University alumni have been pleased with the sincere interest taken in higher education by Governor Lausche, an interest that has worked in equal fashion to the advantage of their alma mater and to that of the other tax-supported universities of the state.

No less a friend of higher education will be the new governor, Mr. Herbert. Two sisters and a niece of the governor-elect hold degrees from Ohio University, while a second niece was in attendance here for two years. It is not for a minute expected that these ties will mean favored treatment for Ohio University or that university authorities will presume to ask for special consideration on account of them. We may feel assured, however, that a man who is college trained, himself, and the members of whose family have enjoyed state-provided educational opportunities, will give a sympathetic hearing to all reasonable requests that are directed to him by the state universities.

GIVE "Not What You Give, But That YOU Give" is the slogan that appears at the top of a printed appeal currently being made to alumni for contributions to the Ohio University Fund, Inc. After pointing out what the gifts will mean and how the Fund directors will use them the folder ends with the statement of a belief that givers will experience a "real feeling of satisfaction" out of helping to create a "greater" Ohio University. To all of which the editor adds his personal word of endorsement.

SHAME! In a general letter sent out to alumni last month over the name of the Alumni Secretary some of the things that Ohio University is doing and has done in behalf of war veterans were mentioned. Mentioned with pride, incidentally.

Imagine the secretary's surprise, therefore, to receive the following letter from an alumna in the Eastern part of the country. The lady graduated quite a number of years ago, and, from her attitude, it can easily be guessed that she had no sons in the armed forces. The letter is reproduced in its entirety.

Dear Sir:

I have your letter of October 10th and I am writing to say that it leaves me quite unmoved. This hectic sending of a group of people to college after a war means that a lot will be given an education at the expense of many like myself who are already finding taxes unbearable, and who will not be an asset to the country but should be returning to farms and industry.

There is one of these postwar educational mills set up where I hear comments of folks who can observe the students. They are vulgar, untidy in their habits and insolent in their manners.

Until the colleges can prove they are turning out a fine characterized human product I am not interested in aiding general appeals.

Very truly yours,
(Name withheld by editor)

As reported in previous issues of The Alumnus the veteran-students are among the finest of our campus citizens here at Ohio University. Official records show that the all-veteran scholastic average last year was higher than the all-university average, and members of the faculty have frequently declared that the veterans are among their most courteous, cooperative, and earnest students. From what we have read and heard it would seem that the facts are the same in colleges and universities generally. Sure, there are a few loafers and ne'er-do-wells among the veterans. But who can't remember classmates of prewar days to whom the terms could be applied with equal validity.

Cutler Restoration

By Ralph Stone Smith
Director of Publicity, Ohio University

IF THE Rev. Dr. Manasseh Cutler, one of Ohio University's founders, could return to the campus today he would no doubt be pleased with the restoration, now under way, of the building named in his honor.

Cutler Hall, the oldest college edifice in the Northwest Territory, will be restored to its early American style of architecture at a cost of $147,000, more than eight times the original cost of the building.

When it was built in 1816, the whole structure cost but $17,806, and Benjamin Corp of Marietta was paid only six dollars for serving as assistant architect.

The exterior of the 130-year-old hall will be restored to its original appearance and dimensions, as designed in 1812 by General Rufus Putnam, another of the college's founders and a Revolutionary War hero. Even the roof gable will be lowered to its first position, having been raised approximately three feet when the building was remodeled in 1882.

Renovation of Cutler Hall, condemned ten years ago for classroom use, has been planned for several years. Legislation appropriating funds for the project was passed during the general assembly at Columbus in the spring and the Civilian Production Administration granted approval of the work in May.

The interior of the building will be completely revamped, with reinforced concrete floors replacing the wooden ones, and new windows, doors, and an elevator being added. Up-to-date heating, lighting and plumbing will be installed.

The plan for a university to be built on land purchased in 1787 was said to have been a favorite with Dr. Cutler, and he prepared with great care the charter which gave the first-born college of the West its start.

A physician and botanist as well as a minister, Dr. Cutler was the first person to examine the flora of New England extensively, classifying over 300 plants. In 1795 he was offered a commission as judge of the Supreme Court of the Ohio Territory, which he declined.

President John C. Baker has indicated that the two objectives in remodeling Cutler Hall are to restore it as nearly as possible to its original exterior appearance and to provide offices for the president and administrative officers and several seminar classrooms.

Administrative officers formerly located in Cutler Hall have been forced to vacate during the restoration period, expected to last well into the spring. Dean of the College of Education Evan R. Collins and Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and Graduate College W. S. Gamertsfelder now have their offices in the basement of the Edwin Watts Chubb Library.

Dean of the College of Fine Arts Earl C. Seigfried has his quarters on the mezzanine floor of Memorial Auditorium, while Director of Dining Halls Margaret K. Davis has been assigned to the auditorium ticket office. Associate Director of the Ohio University Fund Harold E. Wise has moved to the third floor of the Men's Gymnasium. Director of Branches Albert C. Gubitz has his office in McGuffey Hall.

The remaining officers are housed in the Student Center Building. They include Dean of Men Maurel Hunkins, Co-ordinator of Veterans Affairs Victor Whitehouse, Director of Publicity Ralph Stone Smith and Bureau of Appointments Supervisor Einar A. Hansen.

In its day Cutler Hall has provided dormitory space for 100 students, biology laboratories, classrooms, presidents' offices, and a museum. The Rev. William Holmes McGuffey, author of the popular McGuffey Readers and Spelling Books, had his office in the building from 1839 to 1843 when he was president of Ohio University.

General Eisenhower Accepts Award

GENERAL DWIGHT DAVID EISENHOWER received the American Alumni Council's second annual Award of Merit during an impressive ceremony at Amherst College on July 11.

The presentation of the award, an illuminated scroll in a red morocco cover, was made by Dr. J. Maryon Saunders, president of the Council and alumni secretary of the University of North Carolina.

President Saunders' address and General Eisenhower's formal acceptance were both broadcast by the National Broadcasting Company.

"Today is a happy occasion for the American Alumni Council," President Saunders said. "In this national organization are some 500 alumni association executives, alumni magazine editors, and alumni fund directors. We are gathered together in time of peace to present an award won in time of war.

"More than 18 months ago, the colleges and universities of this country were invited to make nominations for the Council's annual Award of Merit. Announcement of the award specified that the alumnus-of-the-year must have achieved eminence in his or her chosen field of endeavor, must have made worthy contribution beyond the demands of his own profession, and must have evidenced a concern for the spiritual and moral welfare of his community.

"A year ago the recipient for 1945 was chosen. The actual ceremony of presentation was delayed because the man selected was then engaged in operations overseas. He has graciously and courteously come here today as our guest, thus honoring by his presence the more than seven and a half million living former students of American colleges and universities.

"It is my privilege now, on behalf of the American Alumni Council, to present to General of the Armies Dwight D. Eisenhower, graduate in 1915 of the United States Military Academy, the American Alumni Council Award of Merit."

Acceptance of Award

In his acceptance address, General Eisenhower said, in part:

"There is for me an understandable pride in the privilege of representing before this distinguished body those millions of fighting men to whom your generous expressions really apply. Yet the services for which I am being so signally commended by the American Alumni Council involved circumstances which we are determined shall never re-appear upon this earth.

"Toil, sacrifice, and death had once again to provide a shield for democracy against the murderous assault of dictatorships reaching for world domain. War, in unprecedented scope and destructiveness, swept over great portions of the earth's productive centers, leaving in its wake broken an awareness by every American that he, personally, and the democracy of which he is a part, are living in a decade of test before the world."

General Eisenhower called upon the American people to understand the necessity for a substantial Army to perform the duties of occupation in Germany and Japan. Nothing, he said, would encourage recalcitrance or open rebellion in occupied territories so much as an indication of American weakness.

The General also emphasized the importance of absorbing into the country's productive life the millions of men and women who served in the armed forces.

"Just as the military developed the leadership to utilize these qualities of our youth in battle," he said, "so now must you, and others like you, produce the pattern of leadership that will best employ them in peace."

General Eisenhower said that it was his firm conviction that peace and tranquility could not come to one nation unless it was achieved by all, that every nation was neighbor to all mankind. He said that we must not only have teamwork at home, we must have international teamwork.

Our nation, he said, is the greatest product of democracy, and it must be to all men "a shining example of what democracy can accomplish—a worthy champion of right and justice and freedom throughout the world."

"Every cooperate effort in the community, the nation, the world," he concluded, "demands sacrifice of some sort from every individual. But patriotism is the expression of the will to sacrifice. In the school and home and church, in every agency concerned with the training of youth, stress must be laid on the development and amplification of this virtue, so that cooperation, possible only where a common bond unites men, may become the watchword of our social, economic and national life.

"Here is the great task for every man who by training or occupation finds himself in a position of leadership. To help produce, foster, and sustain this unity of purpose and action—to promote clear understanding of the relationships between this domestic unity and the future peace of the world—are, I submit, tasks peculiarly appropriate to Alumni

The American Alumni Council is made up of alumni secretaries, magazine editors, and fund directors of 364 American and Canadian colleges and universities.

The 31st National Conference of the A.A.C. was held at Amherst, Mass., July 10-13. One of the highlights of the conference was the presentation to General of the Armies Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff, U. S. Army, of the Council's Award of Merit for 1945 and his acceptance of it.

Shown in the picture of the presentation (see opposite page) are one of the two major generals who accompanied the army head, General Eisenhower, President Saunders, and Kenney L. Ford, alumni secretary at Kansas State College.

General Eisenhower is the second recipient of the Award of Merit. The 1944 award went to Madame Chiang Kai-shek, a graduate of Wellesley College. The presentation was made in Chicago to Dr. Wei Tao-ming, Chinese ambassador to the United States, and accepted by the Chinese first lady in a response by shortwave from Chungking.

economics, governmental chaos, and starving millions.

"Conflagration brings the need for clearing away wreckage before constructive work can begin anew. Our own country is now engaged in this process both at home and abroad. Here we are reconverting industry from the demands of war to those of peace . . . Abroad, we, with other nations, are engaged in rescuing the persecuted, feeding the hungry, re-establishing order and encouraging peoples to adopt democratic processes . . . I firmly believe that an indispensable factor in the problem is

THE EISENHOWER CITATION

This award is made by the duly constituted representation of more than seven and a half million graduates and former students of American universities and colleges in thankful appreciation for the noble service he has so conspicuously rendered to his country and to the liberty-loving nations of the world by leading the armies of free men to victory, for emancipation of the enslaved; and for the raising of a foundation upon which nations may build an international instrument for the preservation of peace.

He has wielded his great authority with humility; he has demonstrated his profound faith in democracy by the confidence which he has placed in a free press; he has earned the admiration of a grateful nation through his chivalrous spirit in accepting honor solely as the representative of those who fought under his command.

We salute General Dwight David Eisenhower as a victorious soldier; we revere him as a truly great American.

Associations. As in all mass efforts, leadership is an essential ingredient; leadership in all walks of life, in every type of activity. No other is better suited to its exacting and important requirements than the graduate of the American college. There can be no worthier purpose nor any more glowing reward than an entire world — peaceful, tranquil, prosperous! The alternative will not wait, the time to attack is now."

Informal Remarks

Following the reading of his formal acceptance, General Eisenhower delighted his audience by putting down the prepared address, grinning the famous Eisenhower grin, and saying: "Now I'd like to talk to you people."

He prefaced his informal remarks by saying that the funny thing about a war is that after it is won it looks so easy.

He explained that it isn't reasonable to criticize a military leader long after a battle has been won or lost. The factors which must be considered by a military commander in making grave and immediate decisions on the field of battle cannot possibly be weighed with the proper perspective after the war is over. Many of the factors which seem obvious even to the layman are based on information not available to a military leader when his vital decision must be made.

He illustrated his point with General Robert E. Lee's decision which brought about Pickett's charge in the Battle of Gettysburg — a military catastrophe which has never been justified by students of military strategy, and yet, General Lee is recognized by all military authorities as one of the world's greatest generals.

General Eisenhower talked about his ideas of the purposes of education—saying, in part, that although it has been proved on dramatic occasions like Pearl Harbor that the American people can be united by fear and anger, they need to be educated for unity resulting from more constructive promptings than fear.

He urged colleges in America to sponsor the study of other governments so that we can supplant fear with understanding. By acquainting its students with the workings of other governments and other nations, knowledge will be substituted for fear and suspicion. This, he said, would be a gigantic step toward the abolition of war. He asserted that, regardless of whether nuclear fission weapons and bacteriological warfare would be used, the world cannot stand another war.

General Eisenhower asked his audience if there were any questions. President Saunders responded by asking the General to give some of the background information regarding the events which led up to his momentous decision to initiate the Normandy invasion.

General Ike replied that it was often the apparently minor decisions of war that were hardest to make. He said that actually the decision to cross the Channel was easy because most of the important factors were known. He pointed out that the North African invasion contained the greater number of unknown factors and was, therefore, the most hazardous undertaking of the war.

The General credited two Scotch meteorologists with really making the grave decision which was to send our armies into France. These men, he said, kept the expedition from heading into a spell of terrible weather even though the skies over England were sunny. Later, they gave the go-ahead signal in almost stormy weather because they had spotted in the area of the Azores the promise of thirty-six hours of clearness. General Eisenhower said that German meteorologists had missed the "good spot" in the Azores and had informed the German high command that no immediate invasion could be expected after June 4.

Tells Story On Self

To A.A.C. officers at the speakers table the famous general, with typical self-effacement and evident glee, told this story:

At the Abilene, Kansas, Victory Celebration, given shortly after his triumphant return from Europe, he had the great pleasure of seeing his mother as well as his four successful brothers. At the reception a reporter made this somewhat trite remark to Mother Eisenhower: "Well, Mrs. Eisenhower, aren't you proud of your son?" And she replied: "Which one?"

On and About the Campus . . .

WHEN an appropriation made by the Campus Affairs Committee for the "Migration Day" trip of the Ohio University Band to Delaware on November 2 proved to be inadequate for meals for the 127 bandmen (see cut), band officers initiated a drive to secure the needed funds. An appeal to Athens alumni, merchants, and organizations soon netted enough to cover the likely deficit. Just how much the band contributed to the Bobcats' smashing 49-7 victory over Wesleyan's "Battling Bishops" cannot be estimated, but the fact that the players tooted and thumped on full stomachs undoubtedly means that there was extra vim, vigor, and inspiration in their music. The picture of the band was taken during the Ohio-Muskingum game when the crowd in the East Stand of Ohio Stadium was a bit sparse.

OHIO UNIVERSITY women not affiliated with Greek-letter sororities now have an organization of their own—the Women's Independent Association. The aims of the new organization are to promote the general welfare and well being of independent women on the campus and to provide an adequate recreational, social and educational program. President of the W.I.A. is Rosanne Talley, Chillicothe, a senior, while Mrs. Henri S. Rigo (DOROTHY McCLURE, '42), dietitian at the Men's Dorm, is adviser for the organization. An active independent men's association has existed for many years. It is headed this year by Nicholas Alexander, Jersey City, N. J.

MISS CONSTANCE HARRY, assistant mistress at the Pokesdown County Primary School, Bournemouth, England, has exchanged places this year with Miss Helen Evans, assistant professor of education and supervising critic of the second grade in the University Elementary School. Miss Evans is one of 75 American teachers now in England as representatives of the United States in a teacher exchange program.

MONICA ROWE of Stewart Town, Trelawney, Jamaica, entered Ohio University this fall as a junior in pre-meds. Her father and mother, the former, rector of the Anglican Episcopal Church in Stewart Town, accompanied Miss Rowe to Athens and have now returned to their home in the British West Indies. Miss Rowe's brother is in England studying to be a barrister.

APPROXIMATELY 100 teachers attended the first annual fall conference of the Ohio Association of Speech and Hearing Therapy held at Ohio University on October 19. Headlining the list of speakers was Dr. Wendell Johnson, director of the speech clinic at the University of

"THERE IS nothing wrong with Ohio schools that money can't cure," Walton B. Bliss, executive secretary of the Ohio Education Association, told 2,000 Southeastern Ohio Education Association members at their annual fall meeting in Alumni Memorial Auditorium on October 25. He pointed out that 55,000 teachers in Ohio are still operating on certificates and that their failure to secure degrees is attributable to low salaries. The average salary for grade school teachers in 11 southeastern Ohio counties is $1300 per year, and the average for high school teachers, $1770. Dean Emeritus Thomas C. McCracken was president of the S.O.E.A. and presided over the opening session. The new president is N. B. Potts, assistant superintendent of the Scioto County schools. W. A. SMITH, '29, superintendent of the Pomeroy schools, was elected vice president and GEORGE E. CARR, '20, Logan school superintendent, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

IN ADDRESSING the annual convention of the Ohio Congress of Parents and Teachers held in Columbus in September, Dean Evan R. Collins of the College of Education declared that "the basic skills and knowledge the armed forces seek are best taught in our schools," and that education is an alternative to peacetime military conscription. Admitting that there are certain "deficiencies" in the public school program which the services have pointed out, Dean Collins urged social and financial support to remedy them. Physical fitness, basic technical knowledge and skills, adaptability to group living, and orientation in world citizenship are four of the main objectives the armed forces have sought for the year of military training, the Ohio dean explained. "We believe training and education in each of these fields can better be given in schools than in the services, and we think that this education is the proper business of any school to give to its students," Dean Collins emphasized.

PLANS HAVE been completed for the reorganization of the Pershing Rifles, national honorary society for ROTC cadets taking the basic course. The local organization became inactive during the war. "The Rifles" organization was founded in 1894 at the University of Nebraska by Lieut. John J. Pershing, who later became commander of the AEF of World War I.

OHIO UNIVERSITY'S veterans have their targets fixed and their eyes glued to them. In other words they know why they came to the campus and what they want out of their stay here. A survey recently completed by Veterans Co-ordinator

Victor Whitehouse reveals that six out of seven of the 3112 former service men have definite educational and vocational objectives. This is all the more remarkable because nearly two thirds of them are freshmen. A spot check of the 2477 non-veteran students showed that less than three out of four in that group had chosen a career. The figures include both the on-campus enrollment and the students in the three branches. More than half, 1752, of the Ohio University veterans saw combat duty. Of the total number of service men, 1212 were in the Army, 1082 in the Navy, 850 in the Army Air Corps, 123 in the Marine Corps, and 34 in the Coast Guard. The women veterans include 15 WAVE's and 6 WAC's.

FOLLOWING months of agitation for changes in the plan of student government on the campus the Student Council has adopted an amendment to its constitution providing for the election of the council president and vice president. The Student Council is composed of representatives of the major student organizations of the campus, among them, Women's League, Men's Union, Panhellenic Council, Interfraternity Council, Women's Recreation Association, YWCA, Varsity O, Veterans Club, Independents' Association, and Campus Religious Council. At present the president of the Women's League serves as chairman the first semester and the president of the Men's Union Planning Board serves as chairman the second semester of each year. The council operates under a constitution of its own which has been approved by the Campus Affairs Committee. It has the delegated authority to consider, promote, and put into effect all projects which pertain to student activities at the Student Center and on the campus-at-large.

Applications for the Student Council presidency will be received in the offices of the dean of men and the dean of women until November 8. Candidates must be juniors, have a 2.0 scholastic average, and have shown leadership qualities in campus activities. A nominating board of three faculty members, three senior men, and three senior women will weigh the merits of the candidates and announce the list of those eligible to run for the office. The nominating board is made up of the following: Dr. James R. Patrick, Prof. C. N. Mackinnon, and Dr. Eileen Phillips (faculty representatives); and Ollie Tedrow, Betty Smart, Mary Lou Hagerman, Desmond Cook, Robert Regula, and William Benson (senior representatives).

BASKETBALL GAMES and other important events taking place in the Men's Gym will soon be carried over Ohio University's Radio Station W'OU to all of the university dormitories and later to the temporary housing quarters for veterans on the lower campus. A new feature of the radio station is the early morning "Wake-Up Show" from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. The show includes a five-minute newscast at eight o'clock. About every three minutes, the time of day is given, along with interesting sidelights on Athens and Ohio University. The "comics" are also dramatized during the show.

Ohioan Tells Of Experiences In Italy and Receipt of Decoration

ON THE second of July I was awarded the Commenda, a rather high Italian decoration, which is bestowed by the King on Italians and foreigners who are considered as benefactors of the Italian nation. I believe that the head of the Carabinieri (Italian Military Police) here at Pisa, a friend of mine, was largely responsible in my receiving the award. He knew my deep interest in the culture, especially the ancient culture, of this country and my good will towards the citizens in whatever part of Italy I have been stationed. My case could have been documented, had he known, with the record of assistance I had given the Royal Family when the Italian and Swiss border was closed and it was necessary for some members of the family to pass from Montreux in Switzerland, where they had found refuge during the War, into Italy, or vice versa, from Italy into Switzerland. I had also facilitated the passage of relief supplies into Italy from charitable organizations in Switzerland, when a strict, hidebound interpretation of the regulations of border control could have excluded this relief for the starving people of Milan.

It may seem a little strange that I received this award after the abdication of the King. This is the way it happened. The request for the conferring of the honor upon me was made some weeks before the election, but the papers were held up by reason of the necessary approval of Allied Force Headquarters which must approve such an honor before it can be conferred on an American citizen.

Hugh H. Davis, '32, whose connection with the Army's Counter Intelligence Corps in Pisa, Italy, has recently been changed from a military to a civilian status, has written interestingly to home folks of his experiences in the Italian city. Excerpts from one of his letters are here reproduced.

Before entering the Army Mr. Davis had been an instructor in classical languages at Ohio University and he had taught in the department of classics at the University of Cincinnati. War services prevented completion of work for a Ph. D. degree at the latter institution.

When said approval was granted, the Ministry of the Royal Family sent the decoration to Pisa and I received it from the hands of an official of the Ministry at Pisa and in the presence of the Colonel of the Carabinieri. My decoration was probably one of the last granted by the King before he left Italy. Now that the monarchy was voted out there will be no more awards of this type, but those who already possess them are free to wear them and use the title Commendatore. It is the third grade in the knighthood instituted by the King of Italy in 1868.

With regard to the King's abdication, it must be remembered that the votes for the Republic were very, very few more than those for the Monarchy. (In fact, some authorities even maintain that the Monarchy had more votes.) The fact remains that the votes were about evenly divided. Many persons, who originally were in favor of a Republic, went over to the side of the Monarchy thinking the Monarchy the best guarantee for a stable government here in Italy. Undoubtedly, the House of Savoy made many mistakes, but it was the old King who finally forced Mussolini to resign as head of the government. Then, too, the new King, Umberto II, had shown himself a good ruler both as Lieutenant-General of the Realm and as King for the short period after abdication of his father and before the elections. Umberto II is said to have been anti-fascist during the time Mussolini was at the head of the government.

The Sunday before last I participated in the inauguration of the Exposition of the Pisan Sculpture of the 14th Century. Pisa was the cradle of Italian art, being famous long before the Renaissance began at Florence. Through my efforts the American Consul from Florence graced the occasion with his presence and promised to see that the Exposition should receive adequate publicity in the U.S.A. The Exposition is a very important event in the world of art as well as a symbol of the initiative of the people here to rebuild and commence life anew after the fearful destruction this city received during the War (after several disastrous air raids, both Allied and German. The front was here for a period of 45 days).

The building that houses the Exposition is a very ancient one that has been rehabilitated in the last several months, and is ideal for the exhibiting of the works of art, which fortunately were removed to a safe place during the War. They now make a triumphal entry as it were, once again into the city that gave them birth. I had a place of honor among the civic and military authorities in the front row of seats facing the speakers.

Among the personages I met that day was the venerable Archbishop of Pisa, who is almost 80 years old. He is especially beloved by the people for the reason that he alone remained with them in the city when the Fascist authorities deserted their posts of duty when the air raids were worst and conflicting armies were closing in on the city. After the ceremonies I was one of a very limited group of persons present at a dinner given by the Director of the Monuments and Works of Art in this part of Italy. In the interval after the ceremonies and before the dinner, I invited the consul to rest awhile at our house. He willingly accepted the invitation. He told us of some rather interesting adventures that befell him before and during the war here in Italy. The consul is a Kansan, and at one time was a professor of economics at the University of Wichita.

New Units Added To R.O.T.C.

THE WAR DEPARTMENT has approved the expansion of Ohio University's ROTC by the addition of Air Corps and Quartermaster Corps courses.

The two-year elementary and two-year advanced programs were started this fall, supplementing the previously offered Infantry training.

Students were permitted to elect work in any of the three branches of the service, limited only by quotas. The Air Corps led with 35 advanced student enrollees, followed by the Infantry with 19 cadets and nine in the Quartermaster Corps.

Approximately 293 freshmen are taking the elementary course, required in cases of no previous military training.

Upon graduation and completion of the advanced course, students will be commissioned as Army Reserve second lieutenants if 21 years of age.

World War II veterans were allowed to enroll in the advanced work if they had had at least one year of active duty. Ex-servicemen with six months of service were permitted to enter the second year of elementary study. Regular college credit is being granted.

Advanced students are paid a subsistence allowance of approximately $20 a month. All ROTC students are furnished uniforms which need be worn only at drill and special events, said Col. Ray E. Cavenee, USA, professor of military science and tactics.

Cadets will get work in their specialized fields at summer camps of six to eight weeks duration at the end of the first year of advanced study.

The ROTC unit, always graded "excellent" in the 12 years it has been on the Ohio University campus, has enrolled World War II veterans ever since the war was over, proving that not all ex-servicemen are "fed up" with the Army. In fact, all of the 63 advanced students are veterans.

With the expansion of the ROTC, additional officer and non-commissioned personnel were assigned to duty here. Col. Cavenee now has three officers and five enlisted men on duty in the university's military department and is expecting three more officers and four enlisted men.

Officers currently assigned are Capt. Mark Treat, Air Corps; Capt.

John E. Lynch, Infantry; and First Lieut. James Skinner, Quartermaster Corps. Non-commissioned officers include Master Sergeant Francis M. Petro, Infantry; Master Sergeant Wil Hawkins, Quartermaster Corps; and Technical Sergeants A. G. McMilton, Harold Dutton, and Varney W. Kelly, Air Corps.

Subjects offered to advanced Infantry students include courses in communications, gunnery, motors and transportation, tactics, the military team and troop movements.

Special Air ROTC subjects which may be taught in the second year advanced course are aircraft maintenance, armament, weather and communications, administration, statistical control, supply and transportation.

Work in the College of Commerce will be given students in the Quartermaster Corps. Subjects include administration of civilian personnel, classification of supplies, station and depot supply, and property and accountability.

Orientation flying will be offered to Air ROTC students who can qualify in their senior year. After commissioning as ground officers they will be given a high priority, if so desired, to go to an Army flying school to earn a pair of silver wings.

President John C. Baker, highly pleased that the War Department had seen fit to expand Ohio University's ROTC, said he thought "the main objective of this far-reaching program is to provide the Army with a steady flow of college trained officers. It is my understanding that future AAF reserve officers and a large portion of its regulars are expected to come from this program."

Col. Cavenee, who on June 22 relieved Maj. Raymond Lee as PMSE&T, is a veteran of 30 years service in the Regular Army. During World War II he served as commander of the 136th Infantry Regiment in the South Pacific, seeing service on New Guinea, and in the West Indies and the Philippines.

Added in July was Capt. John E. Lynch, a graduate of Indiana University, where he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Reserve. He went on active duty in July, 1940. From Jan., 1942, to Aug., 1945, Capt. Lynch served overseas in England, Iceland, Ireland, France, Germany and the Rhineland with the 10th Infantry, 2nd Battalion.

their headquarters in the structure, which was first known as the College Edifice, then the Center College, because it was, and still is, located in the center of the campus.

Not only was Cutler Hall the first college building in the Northwest Territory, but Ohio University was also the first land-grant college in the United States, and the first institution for higher learning in all that part of North America from Pennsylvania to the Pacific Ocean and from the Ohio River to the Arctic Ocean.

General Putnam, a man who never went to college, nor even to school, was responsible for these "firsts." One of the first men in the United States to urge Congress to set aside lands for the support of education, he was foremost in the movement at the end of the Revolutionary War to have the vast tracts of the public domain surveyed and settled.

The result was the Ordinance of 1787, in which Congress provided for the township system of survey and the granting of land for the purpose of education. In 1787 the Ohio Company of Associates, organized by Putnam, was ready to purchase land. A proposition for the purchase of land made by General Samuel H. Parsons was referred to a committee of five members of Congress, which recommended that four townships of land be set aside for the University.

When Manasseh Cutler followed General Parsons as agent of the Ohio Company of Associates in 1787 he succeeded in making a contract with Congress for the purchase of a large tract of land in what is now South-eastern Ohio.

In this contract as authorized on July 27, 1787, Congress reserved two complete townships of land for the purpose of a University to be located in the center of the purchase.

But it was not until 1795 that Putnam, with his surveying crew, rowed down the Ohio and up the Hocking River and located the University townships, 8 and 9, in range 14. Late in 1799 he laid out the town of Athens and the campus for the University.

Interested in having a model charter, Putnam consulted Cutler, who replied that there was no college charter in America suitable for the University. He made several recommendations, however, including the suggestion of "American University" for the name of the college.

The General Assembly of the Northwest Territory passed an act on Jan. 9, 1802, incorporating many of Cutler's suggestions, but named the school the "American Western University." Little was done under the act, for Ohio soon afterwards became a state, and, on Feb. 18, 1804, the General Assembly passed a law generally considered the charter of Ohio University and changing the name of the institution to "Ohio University."

General Rufus Putnam

In a report of Nov. 16, 1885, President Charles W. Super, for whom a building on the Ohio University campus also was named, wrote: "The record shows that in the space of 70 years, that is, from 1815 to 1885, the trustees conferred 489 regular and 75 honorary degrees. That of B.A. was conferred 280 times; of B.S., 65 times; of B.Ph., five times; and of A.M., 239 times. The honorary degree of A.M. was conferred 45 times, that of D.D. 16 times, and that of LL.D. seven times."

Thus not only would General Putnam (who hoped some day to see the university enroll as many as 500 students) be pleased with the restoration of the College Edifice when it is completed, but he would be even more pleased with the remarkable record of growth made by Ohio University. For, from an opening-day student body of three men, the college has grown until its enrollment this fall is nearly 5,800.

Alumni Groups Schedule Meetings In Local Areas

The Ohio University Women's Club of Youngstown opened a four-function program for 1946-47 with a picnic, Sept. 28, at Homestead Park. On Nov. 9 the members of this group will meet for a dessert bridge.

Capt. Nick Lalich, '38, former O.S.S. agent in Central Europe, was the speaker at a meeting of the Cleveland Bobcat Club (men) held Oct. 15 at the Carter Hotel. Football movies wound up the program.

President Baker of Ohio University will be the guest speaker at a combined dinner meeting of the Ohio University Mothers' Club and the Bobcat Club, Nov. 14, at Hotel Cleveland.

An All-Ohio U. Christmas Dance will be held, Dec. 21, at Cleveland's University Club on Euclid Avenue under the sponsorship of the Bobcat Club. All students, alumni, and friends are invited to attend what will be a gala affair. More information anon.

Tentative plans have been reported for an alumni get-together in Cincinnati on either Nov. 23 (date of the Xavier-Ohio football game) or the following day, Nov. 24. The Queen City organization is headed by William L. Kircher, '36.

First Postwar Homecoming Draws Largest Crowd Ever

Highly successful in every respect but one—the outcome of the football game—was Ohio University's 1946 Homecoming Day observed on October 26.

The game attendance of well over 12,000 persons was an all-time high, while longtime observers of the local scene were unanimous in their belief that there had never been such a crowd on Court Street as greeted the Saturday morning Float Parade.

Led by the Ohio University Band and participated in, also, by the Athens High School Band, the entries of 18 campus organizations—mostly fraternities and sororities—made up the longest and probably best parade in Homecoming history.

In the women's division the float entered by Phi Sigma Sigma was awarded the silver trophy as the most outstanding. Alpha Phi Delta's float

The Bobcat Sports Review

NINETEEN years ago Ohio University's Homecoming was marred by a 28-0 trouncing at the hands of the Wittenberg Lutherans.

Ever since 1927 the Bobcats had been able to preserve their record of winning all Homecoming games that is, until they met Miami University Oct. 26.

That Saturday afternoon the span was broken when the Redskins defeated Ohio U. by 23-14 at Ohio Stadium, playing before a record-breaking crowd of 12,236 students, alumni, and fans.

It was the second loss in a row for Coach Don C. Peden's pigskin proteges as the University of Cincinnati had won the week before by 19-0.

However, the Bobcats had opened their 50th football season by taking three in a row, winning from Murray, Ky., State 27-7, downing Western Michigan College 25-7 at Kalamazoo, and easily taking the measure of Muskingum College by 38-0.

Four games remained. Ohio Wesleyan was to be met at Delaware Nov. 2, Baldwin-Wallace College was to play at Athens Nov. 9. The University of Dayton was set to invade the Bobcats' lair on Nov. 16 for a Dad's Day fray. The Ohio U. eleven's last game of the season was scheduled with Xavier University in Cincinnati on Nov. 23.

Miami, rated as the favorite by most sports writers, entered the fray with a slight disadvantage as to games won and lost in the long series. Since 1908 the traditional rivals had tangled 22 times, the Bobcats winning 12 games and losing 10.

But the Redskins, with a smooth running ground attack interspersed with a barrage of aerials, had to come from behind to win in the last quarter. Miami scored two touchdowns and a field goal in the final period after Ohio U. led at the half by 14-6.

Dick Hodena, hard-charging Cleveland fullback, scored Ohio's first touchdown midway in the second quarter, plunging over left tackle from the 2-yard line. The TD culminated a 65-yard drive. Ed Sudnick, another Cleveland back, came in to placekick the extra point. Score: Ohio U. 7, Miami 0.

Miami then put the ball in play on its own 37 after receiving the kickoff. On the first play from scrimmage, Quarterback Jack Robinson passed to Halfback Paul Shoultz for a touchdown. The aerial and run were good for 63 yards. Tom Cole's attempted placement was blocked. Score: Ohio U. 7, Miami 6.

Quarterback King Brady of Yakima, Wash., who had sparked the Bobcats all season, made his team's second touchdown when he went around right end, cut to his left, and went over standing up from 27 yards out. Sudnick's kick was good. Score: Ohio 14, Miami 6.

The third period was scoreless, although Ohio carried to Miami's 7-yard stripe only to lose the ball on downs.

Early in the fourth quarter, End Hal Paul of the Oxford eleven blocked Brady's punt and recovered it on the Ohio 35. Robinson set up a touchdown by passing 17 yards to Halfback Ara Parseghian which put the ball on the 5-yard line. Fullback Wayne Gibson plunged over. Cole's kick was good. Score: Ohio 14, Miami 13.

A few minutes later Miami got

possession of the ball on its own 44 after returning a punt. Two running plays and a pass put the ball on the Ohio 7-yard line. A second pass was incomplete. Cole then dropped back to the 14-yard marker and placekicked a field goal. Score: Miami 16, Ohio 14.

Ohio U.'s first fumble of the game occurred late in the final stanza and led to Miami's third and last TD. Brady, attempting to pass while being rushed on his own goal line, fumbled and Paul recovered inches behind the goal line stripe. The Bobcats had been put in a hole by a 15-yard penalty which set them back to their own 7. Cole kicked the extra point. Score: Miami 23, Ohio U. 14.

THE University of Cincinnati erased the Bobcats from the ranks of the four undefeated state elevens by downing them 19-0 at Nippert Stadium under the lights Oct. 19. The game, the Bearcats' Homecoming fray, was the roughest of the season and caused injuries to Quarterback Brady early in the first period. Chris Stefan of Dayton took over the signal calling and was a standout for Ohio University.

Scoring in every quarter, Ohio University easily trounced Muskingum College at Athens Oct. 12 by 38-0. The game was played on a soggy field. The Bobcats outplayed the Muskies in every department of the game, piling up 15 first downs and 372 yards net from scrimmage.

The burly Bobcats were too much for the Western Michigan Bronco-

Basketeers Get Under Way

DESPITE the toughest schedule in many seasons, Ohio University's 1946-47 basketball team "should win most of its games."

Known throughout the Middle West for consistently putting strong cage teams on the floor, Coach W. J. (Dutch) Trautwein says the Bobcats will have a "good team and we should have a good year." However, he hedged that statement a bit by adding that the going would be tougher this year as Ohio U. opens collegiate athletic competition in the new Mid-American Athletic Conference.

The veteran mentor has scheduled 23 games, including a round robin with loop members. They are the always-tough Butler University, the University of Cincinnati, Western Reserve University, and Wayne University.

In addition he has slated frays with the powerful University of Kentucky and with two of Ohio's best college quintets, Akron University and Bowling Green University.

The Green and White won 15 games in 20 starts last season, running up 1086 points against 924. Sparked by Bob "Fizz" Miller, sensational forward who played his final game last spring, the Bobcats scored an average of 34 points per game.

Plugging the hole left by Miller is one of Coach Trautwein's headaches as he lays plans for the coming campaign. Termed one of Ohio U.'s all-time great forwards, Miller returned to the squad after serving in the Army, having been a member of the outstanding 1941 team that lost to Long Island University in the finals of the National Invitational Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

Trautwein, in his eighth year as head coach of the Bobcats, has eight lettermen around which to build a winning quintet. From a turnout of nearly 200 candidates, the squad was pruned to 30 men the third week in October. At the conclusion of the football season, several pigskin luggers will join the squad. Kermit Blosser and Jim Snyder, assistant football and basketball coaches, launched practice sessions with "Dutch" in charge.

Kenny Walters of New Lexington, a senior and high point man last year with 258 counters, heads the contingent of lettermen. He plays forward and is expected to lead the scoring attack again.

Ralph Sayre, flashy forward from New Haven, W. Va., who was slow rounding into shape last year, will be trying for his old position again when he hangs up his moleskins.

Another good cageman seeking a starting berth is Russ Gregg of Ashville. A sophomore, he played forward and guard last year as a freshman.

Bill Dickey, six-foot-three and a half inch center from Lancaster, is out for the pivot spot again. He is a neat ball handler.

Bruce Moorehead of Bremen, who lettered in 1943-44 at forward, has returned to school and is slated to take to the hardwood when the football season is over.

Bob Brandle is a senior from Chillicothe who played a steady game at guard last year and is out for his third cage letter at that post.

Harry Lamb, Lancaster sophomore, is seeking to hold down a guard position. He played in a number of games last spring.

Harry Gordon of Cleveland, who lettered in 1941-42, has returned after a hitch for his Uncle Sam and is out for forward or guard.

Perhaps the most highly touted newcomer to the squad is Dick Schrieder, an all-Ohio high school selection in 1941-42 from Glenford. He has been in service for three years and is trying for a berth at forward.

The tallest candidate for center is Paul Whyte of Nelsonville who stands 6-4. He is likely to give Dickey plenty of competition for the pivot position.

Gene Williams, tall, lanky lad from Portsmouth, is another freshman candidate for center. He sparked his high school team in the Southeastern District Tourney here last spring.

Charley Drumm of Akron, halfback on the football squad, has signified his intention of going out for basketball. He played three years on an Akron high quintet.

— Teaching Staff Augmented —

INCOMPLETE in the October Alumnus was the report of new members added to the Ohio University teaching staff this fall to help meet the instructional crisis brought on by the record enrollment.

Listed last month were all new persons with the rank of instructor and above. Reported at this time are the acting instructors, visiting lecturers, graduate assistants and fellows.

There are 25 new acting instructors. These persons, with their highest degrees, the names of the schools from which the degrees were received, and their departments at Ohio University are indicated in the following paragraphs. Ohio University graduates are designated by the one word, "Ohio."

DONALD W. KRIMEL

Donald W. KrimeL, a Wisconsin newspaperman, has been appointed to an instructorship in the School of Journalism. Mr. KrimeL, formerly a sports writer for the Wisconsin State Journal at Madison and editor of the Independent at Elkhorn, Wis., will teach courses in reporting, public relations, and radio journalism. He is a graduate of Northern Illinois State Teachers College, DeKalb, Ill., and earned a master's degree in the philosophy of journalism at the University of Wisconsin.

JOHN ROOD

John Rood, a nationally known sculptor and resident artist at the University of Minnesota for the past two years, has come to the Ohio University campus as artist-in-residence. Wood carving is the field of Mr. Rood's greatest interest, although he studied music in Paris for two years and has painted since the age of 16. His sculptured figures have appeared in some of the country's leading galleries and exhibitions. He is the husband of the former Mary Frances Lawhead '26.

The four new technical assistants are Wilfred R. Konneker (Ohio), physics; Mrs. Jane Cross Hilty (Ohio), anatomy and physiology; Irene Evans (Ohio), bacteriology, and John S. Barney (Ohio), botany.

Here and There Among the Alumni

It is not generally known that one of Ohio University's most distinguished and scholarly graduates of the mid-19th century was a colored man, JOSEPH CARTER CORBIN, A.M. '56. Mr. Corbin was born in Chillicothe in 1838, came to Ohio University in 1850 at the age of 17, and three years later received the A.B. degree. In later years the Ph.D. degree was conferred upon him by a Baptist college in the South. After graduation he taught school in Louisville, Ky. During the Civil War he edited and published The Colored Citizen in Cincinnati. At the end of the war he went to Arkansas where he was elected state superintendent of public instruction. At the conclusion of his term of office he moved to Missouri where he taught for two years in Lincoln Institute in Jefferson City. Returning to Arkansas he accepted the presidency of Branch Normal College which he headed for 30 years. He read Greek, Latin, German, French, Spanish, and Hebrew fluently, and as a scholar in mathematics contributed to leading mathematical journals. He served as president of the State Colored Teachers Association, and one of his fellow educators, a white man, compared him favorably with Horace Mann, the great New England educator. He was described in a Bulletin of the U. S. Bureau of Education as one of the greatest colored men of his state as well as one of the leading educators. In a day when freemasonry was widely practiced by members of the colored race, Dr. Corbin was a 33rd degree Mason, a grand commander of Knights Templar, a grand master of Arkansas Masons, and was for 26 years secretary of the grand lodge in his state. He died Jan 9, 1911, in Pine Bluff.

1870

One of the very real pleasures in the life of an alumni secretary is to meet the sons and daughters of alumni when they come to the campus following in the footsteps of their mothers and dads. This year the number of these "legacies" has increased to an all-time high. An effort will be made at an early date to secure a group picture of these sons and daughters. Although they are not "second generation students," Patricia and Jean Brown, twins from Cincinnati, came to the Alumni Office the other day bearing a note of introduction from their neighbor and very good friend, DR. PHILIP ZENNER, Ohio University's oldest living alumnus. Included in Dr. Zenner's note was the information that the attractive young ladies are great-grand nieces of John Brown, the hero of Harper's Ferry. Although he graduated from Ohio University more than 76 years ago and is now past 94 years of age, Dr. Zenner, a physician and neurologist, goes daily to his office in downtown Cincinnati where he meets some of his old friends and patients.

It is an unusual week that does not bring an invitation to Ohio University to send an official representative to an inauguration, a centennial celebration, or some other special event at an American college or university. Since college presidents are frequently too busy to accept these invitations personally and travel funds are too limited to permit of visitations to distant points, alumni in the vicinities of the inviting schools are sometimes asked to represent their universities. On October 17 Prof. JOHN H. ATKINSON (see picture), Ames, Iowa, represented his alma mater at the centennial celebration held by Grinnell College at Grinnell, Iowa. Prof. Atkinson, who is a brother of DEAN

It is impossible to list all of the alumni who returned on Homecoming Day, October 26. There was no central place for registration and reception, a lack which it is hoped will some day be remedied by a Student Center Building.

From correspondence and personal observation, however, the Alumni Secretary knows that there were very literally thousands of grads and former students back for the day. The official total of paid admissions at the football game was 12,236, a figure never before reached at Ohio Stadium.

Alumni are known to have been present from such far-away states as Washington, Oregon, California, New York, and Florida.

MRS. JANETTE WOODWORTH, 2-yr., serves as clerk for the Railway Express Agency in Athens, an agency headed by her husband, EUGENE E. WOODWORTH, '04x. Mr. and Mrs. Woodworth are the parents of DR. PHILIP J. WOODWORTH, '31, a former army medic now re-establishing his practice in Athens.

On November 11, PROF. THOMAS N. HOOVER, and Mrs. HOOVER (ETHEL ARNOLD, '13x) will entertain at their home in Athens in honor of the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Millikan (AGNES BRIG MILLIKAN, '12, 2-yr.), who are also Athenians and parents of DONALD B. MILLIKAN, '24. Mr. Millikan, formerly a jeweler and optometrist, is now giving his entire time to optometry. Prof. Hoover, oldest member of the Ohio University faculty in point of service, is head of the history department and university historian.

MRS. ALLIE MCGEE TORRANCE, 2-yr., a Life Member of the Ohio University Alumni Association, has been a teacher in the Middletown schools since 1909 and assistant principal of Sherman School since 1928. In 1939 her husband, Alex Torrance, died of a heart attack in Aberdeen, Scotland, his boyhood home, while he and Mrs. Torrance were visiting there. The daughter, NELLIE TORRANCE, '34, also a Life Member of the Alumni Association, is assistant professor of dress design in Pratt Institute's School of Home Economics in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Another step in the rapid advancement of DWIGHT A. FAWCETT, 2-yr., in the New York Central System has taken this railroad man from Indianapolis, where he was assistant general manager of the New York Central System, to New York City where he is now manager of freight transportation for the system. He is the husband of the former HAZEL WINTER, '16x.

The Sterling State Bank of Mt. Sterling should be in excellent hands. Its president is ROBERT G. WEBBER; its vice president is A. ROSS ALKIRE, '11, 2-yr., Ohio University trustee and Mt. Sterling lumber dealer; while its assistant cashier is A. ROSS ALKIRE, Jr., '42. The cashier is Mrs. Geneva Alkire, wife of the vice president, and one of the directors is

DR. STANLEY DOUGAN, a prominent physician and surgical specialist of San Jose, Calif., who suffered a severe heart attack earlier this year, has recovered sufficiently to travel to his home near Penssville, Ohio, from which, after a visit with home folks and Ohio University friends in Athens, he and Mrs. Dougan (NELLE STOKES, '16x) will go on to Florida for the winter. Dr. and Mrs. Dougan are traveling in a large aluminum trailer, "a little three-room home on wheels." A three-weeks' stop was made at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., on the way East. Dr. Dougan graduated from the Stanford University Medical College and practiced his profession in San Francisco before going to San Jose in 1926. He and Mrs. Dougan enjoyed a six-months' tour of the world in 1934-1935. The California surgeon is a licensed pilot, flying his own plane for recreation, and frequently engages in big game hunting in western areas. He was an ace pitcher on baseball teams of his varsity days and following graduation spent one year with the Cincinnati Reds and three years in the Pacific Coast League.

EMMLT E. ROBERTS has been a member of the faculty at Bethany College, Bethany, W. Va., for the past 14 or more years. He is now professor of journalism, but has previously taught English and public speaking. He was at one time associated with Southwestern Louisiana Institute, Lafayette, La.

As auditor of student funds at Ohio University, GLADYS HOWELL, 2-yr. (see picture) is responsible for the accounting systems and periodic auditings of the funds of all extra-curricular activities and most of the fraternity and sorority accounts. Participation of social fraternities and sororities in the Students' General Fund audit system is optional, but all other student organizations of an extra-curricular nature must do business through the fund. Miss Howell audited 131 accounts last year in which the gross receipts totaled more than $165,000 and the disbursements in excess of $137,000. The system is based on a central or general fund with which the individual organizations do business in much the same manner that they would with a commercial bank. The S. G. F. auditor is a sister of Mrs. A. E. LIVINGSTON (MABEL HOWELL, '11), Wayne, Pa., and a former accountant in the treasurer's office of the Pennsylvania College for Women, in Pittsburgh.

AUGUSTUS REEVES, a resident of Athens since 1921, died Sept. 18 at the age of 81. He was the father of the late WILBUR D. REEVES and of Mrs. OLIVE REEVES GUTHRIE, '13x, Cleveland, Mr. Reeves and Mrs. Reeves, who preceded him in death, were known to many Ohio University students who roomed at their home at 11 Pearl St.

MRS. MAUDE CRYDER MATTHEWS, a member of the Ohio University faculty in the department of German from 1918 until her retirement in 1936, is living with MARY WARD, '25, at her home at 267 E. State St., Athens. Mrs. Matthews, widow of the late CHARLES G. MATTHIWS, '93, M.S. '94, Ohio University librarian from 1897 to 1925, is active in church and women's club work in Athens. Miss Ward is assistant professor of education and supervising critic in the University (Rufus Putnam) Elementary School.

Mrs. Lillian Wanner Wagner, widow of the late Dr. A. E. Wagner and mother of four Ohio University graduates, died at her home in Athens early last month following a prolonged illness. Dr. Wagner was for 25 years professor of education and a member of the Extension Division at Ohio University. Mrs. Wagner's survivors include two daughters, Mrs. A. C. Told (MERLE WAGNER), Kissimmee, Fla.; Mrs. P. L. Jones (MABEL WAGNER, '23), Fostoria; two sons, DR. ROBERT W. WAGNER, '34, Oberlin, and RALPH S. WAGNER, '36, Decatur, Ala.; and a granddaughter, BARBARA JONES, who is a freshman at Ohio University.

One of the many Alumni Office visitors during the month of October was Mrs. FEDERICA KASLER BONE of Winslow, Ark. It was Mrs. Bone's first visit to the campus in 20 years. She was accompanied by her son, Robert, Jr., just out of the Navy after six years, and another son, Bill, as well as by her brother-in-law and sister, HERMAN H. DU BOIS, '14, and Mrs. Du Bois (GRETCHEN KASLER, '24), of near Chillicothe. Mr. and Mrs. Du Bois have a son enrolled at Ohio University. Mrs. Bone's husband, ROBERT S. BONE, '19, is district manager in several southern states for the John Bean Manufacturing Co. of Lansing, Mich. The company manufactures farm and horticultural equipment.

Something new has been added in the way of banking service. In a printed circular recently received from DEAN B. COPELAND, a vice president and director of the Butler County National Bank, Butler, Pa., the installation of a "drive-in" teller window in his bank is described. Patrons merely drive close to the window and without leaving their cars hand their deposits to the attendant through a slot. Conversation may be had with the teller by means of a two-way sound system.

The Byron E. Whipples (he, '22, she: FLORA CASTI, '17, 2-yr.) were Alumni Office visitors on Sept. 19. They had come from their home in Pasadena, Calif., to enter a daughter, Beverly, in their alma mater. A son and war veteran, Bill, may follow in the footsteps of his parents and his sister next year.

JOHN M. "SWIDE" MIDDLETON, ex, of the insurance division of the Veterans Administration in Columbus, recently paid his first visit to Ohio University since 1922. The occasion was the Ohio U.-Murray (Ky.) State College football game in which his son participated as a member of the visiting team. The father, who served in the Army in both World Wars I and II, played tackle for the Bobcats back in 1920-1922.

HERBERT W. COX, ex, Athens furniture dealer and husband of the former THELMA MILLER, '21, 2-yr., has been elected a district director of the Ohio Retail Home Furnishings Association. Mr. Cox will represent District 7, composed of furniture dealers in 11 southeastern Ohio counties.

On page 14 (see Class of 1897 notes) is listed a number of recent special college or university events which have been attended by Ohio University alumni as representatives of their alma mater. Three more such events are thus far scheduled for November. These are a presidential inauguration at Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Va., Nov. 1, to be attended by Mrs. Edward R. Harris (MARY PEOPLES), Lynchburg, Va., a presidential inauguration at the University of Richmond (Va.), Nov. 15, at which Ohio's representative will be Mrs. OLIVE DAVIDSON SKINNER, '37, reference librarian at the University of Richmond library and wife of DR. N. WILFORD SKINNER, '35, professor of German at the Richmond school; and a presidential inauguration at West Virginia Wesleyan College, Buckhannon, Nov. 16, to be attended by DR. JAMES L. HUPP, '16, dean of students at the inaugurating school.

Helen Wisnerhof who became the wife of LAWRENCE G. WORSTELL, JR. (see Marriages) on October 5 is a graduate of Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Iowa. She holds a master's degree from Western Reserve University and was a member of the W.R.U. teaching staff. She has also done graduate work at Smith College and Stanford University, and is a member of Mortar Board and Phi Beta Kappa, honor societies. Before accepting the position at Western Reserve she was a district supervisor of the Childrens Service Bureau, a private welfare agency in Cleveland. The groom, an Athens lawyer, is the son of the late JUDGE L. G. WORSTELL, '88, and Mrs. Worstell (LENORE MICHAEL, '89).

W. E. "BILL" MELVIN is the "Melvin" of Melvin & Dilley's Auto Sales, a Packard and Willys agency in fronton.

1926

LUCILLE DUFFIE, Latin and mathematics teacher in Athens Junior High School, was enrolled in the University of Colorado for the 1946 summer session. During the course of her stay she enjoyed mountain climbing and horseback riding as well as trips to various places of interest, including Laramie and Cheyenne, Wyo. In the latter city she attended the annual rodeo, one of the West's outstanding shows of its kind. She also attended the summer opera at Central City, an old ghost mining town. At Laramie she was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. C. D. Samford. Dr. Samford is a former Athens High School teacher now on the faculty of the University of Wyoming.

GERARD C. POWELL, who with Mrs. Powell (ELFANOR WERNERT, '27), has been with a branch of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. in South America for the past 16 years, is now residing in Sao Paulo, Brazil. He first lived in Argentina and later in Peru. For the benefit of Ohioans who may be going down South America way his address is Companhia Goodyear do Brazil, Produtos de Borracha, Caixa Postal 1424, Sao Paulo, Brazil. Mr. Powell was secretary-treasurer of the Goodyear subsidiary in Lima, Peru, and it is presumed that he holds a position of equal or greater responsibility in his present location. The Powells have two sons, Donald and Andy.

DEAN F. KITTLE, who left a teaching position in South High School, Lima, to accept a position as assistant foreman of instruction in the small motors division of the Westinghouse Corporation in Lima during the war years, is now on the faculty of Ohio Northern University at Ada as an instructor in industrial arts. With Mrs. Kittle, the former LUCILLE WOOD, '26, he is still maintaining his home at Cairo.

An Alumni Office visitor on July 26, she is a sister of WILLIAM F. CLINE, '33, South Charleston, W. Va., who is an instructor in the vocational division of the Kanawha County schools.

W. BENNETT SHIMP, A.M. '36, a vocational counselor in the Occupational Opportunities Service at Ohio State University and a former violin instructor at Ohio University, was a campus visitor on October 4. He came especially to administer some musical aptitude tests to students in the School of Music. These tests, devised by Mr. Shimp, have met with wide acceptance.

Dr. and Mrs. A. Gordon Nelson (MRS.

THA WHIPPLE) were campus visitors early this fall. Dr. Nelson is professor of educational and vocational guidance in the School of Education at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

Attendants at the 19th biennial convention of Phi Mu sorority at picturesque Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island in Michigan this summer got their money's worth as far as thrills were concerned. Not only were there the usual feature attractions of a national conference, but during the stay of the Greek letter women Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer moved in to film "This

Mrs. Lewis Hughes
(See Class of 1930 Notes)

Time For Keeps" with Esther Williams, Johnny Johnston, Lauritz Melchior, and Jimmy Durante. In addition, there were the famous Port Huron-Mackinac Island sailboat races. One of the convent delegates was Mrs. Lewis Hughes (LIZIA HUGHES, see picture) of Cleveland, retiring president of District V, a district which embraces Ohio, Kentucky, and Michigan. Mrs. Hughes is secretary-treasurer of Hughes-Burnett, Inc., a large Dodge-Plymouth agency of which her husband is president. She has been active in Ohio University alumni affairs in Cleveland as well as in civic and social activities.

MRS. SUE PORTERFIELD ROGERS will be moving from Milledgeville, Ga., to Fort Leavenworth, Kans., one of these days soon. Her husband, Dr. H. H. Rogers, was professor of physics at the State College for Women in Milledgeville before entering military service. When last reported he was a lieutenant colonel of infantry in the Pacific area. He has now been commissioned in the regular army and assigned to the Kansas post. Col.

and Mrs. Rogers have two children, David and Cornelia, 11 and 9, respectively.

When Dr. Carl O. Hanson, Ohio University's professor of banking and finance, was in Duluth, Minn., early this fall and in need of a nasal operation, he asked his sister, a registered nurse, to recommend the best nose and throat specialist in the city. Her unhesitating suggestion was DR. ORLEN B. PATCH. The Duluth specialist and the local faculty man discovered their mutual interest, Ohio University, during the operation, which Dr. Hanson reports was skillfully and successfully accomplished.

Koppers Stores, a division of Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates at Huntington, W. Va., Pittsburgh, Pa., Boston, Mass., and New York, N. Y., has announced the appointment of a new furniture buyer, HUGH P. LYNCH, who resigned as professor of business administration at Marshall College in Huntington to accept the new position. He became associated with the West Virginia school when a distributive education program was instituted a year ago. Previously he had been a teacher-trainer in business administration at the University of Pittsburgh, and at Temple University in Philadelphia. During the past summer Mr. Lynch was an instructor at Colorado A. & M., Ft. Collins, Colo. He spent some time with the merchandising division of the Selby Shoe Co. in Portsmouth. He is married and has a son, Hugh, Jr.

Mrs. William L. Halfaker (BEATRICE HANSON) is the wife of a Congressional minister in Minneapolis, Minn. The Hansons have two sons: Jimmy, 9, and Alvin, 6.

After extensive overseas war service during which he was a port director in Oran, Toulon, and Marseilles, and participated in the invasion of Southern France, HENRY "HANK" CORRADINI has been appointed chief of the administrative section of the contact and services division of the Veterans Administration in Columbus. In this capacity he will formulate and direct the program for records management and analysis throughout the branch area. Before entering the Navy he was associated with the Ohio State Relief Commission and the WPA in Ohio.

CLARENCE H. JONES, who, after 14 months of war service with the Merchant Marines, returned to his position in Meadville, Pa., as a sales representative of the Buckeye Funeral Supply Co., has resigned that position to enter the shoe business in Sarasota, Fla. Shoeman Jones married a Meadville young lady just a year ago this month.

JOSEPHINE STEINER has left the States to take up duties as superintendent of nurses in a new 300-bed hospital on Lake Maracaibo in Venezuela, South America. The hospital, erected and furnished by funds provided by the Rockefeller Foundation, is operated by the Venezuelan government. Miss Steiner received a master's degree from the Yale University School of Nursing. While working at the Yale University Hospital she enlisted in the Army Nurse Corps and spent 40 months in hospitals in New Zealand, Guadalcanal, and Saipan. After returning from the Pacific she again joined the staff of the Yale Hospital, but resigned to accept the position in South America. Miss Steiner is an aunt of Mrs. Marvin E. White (see Marriages).

After 11 years of coaching in Ohio high schools KENNETH P. JONIS has deserted the field of education for a business career. With his brother-in-law he has recently opened the Athens Building Materials Company on the Lower Plains Road, near Athens. The new plant has a capacity for turning out 200 cement blocks per hour.

The Glonster Press which suspended publication in January, 1943, when its editor and publisher, ALFRED T. CRAFT, went to war, has resumed publication under new ownership and management.

Grace Leslie and Friend
(See Class of 1943 Notes)

The publishing enterprise was established in Glonster by Mr. Craft's father in 1896. After a period of salesmanship training with the McBee Co. in Athens "Al" has been assigned to the Detroit office of the local company, a concern which does an international business.

DR. ROBERT S. SRIGLEY, who served as a surgeon in several army hospitals in the U. S. and on a hospital ship in the Pacific, receiving a special citation for his work in neurosurgery, has established himself in Ardmore, Okla., where he is associated with Dr. Walter Hardy in the practice of surgery at the Hardy General Hospital. Dr. Srigley is an Ohio University Phi Beta and a graduate of the Harvard University Medical School.

WILBUR E. SCHAFER is manager of the personal loan department of the Piqua National Bank & Trust Co. He held positions with loan and savings companies in Dayton and Piqua prior to service in World War II. In 1937 he married Dorothy Kershaw, a graduate of Northwestern University.

The Washington and Lee University gridiron staff is headed by ARTHUR E. LEWIS and has for its line coach DENVER

D. WOOD. '37. Lewis and Wood were teammates and outstanding members of Bobcat varsity squads. Head Coach Lewis was selected for the Little All-America team in 1935 and played in the East-West game in San Francisco on New Year's Day, 1936. Entering professional football after graduation he played with the New York Giants in the National League and later played and coached for the Cleveland Rams in the same league. He coached football for the Navy at its St. Mary's Pre-Flight School and was discharged last year with the rank of lieutenant commander. "Denny" Wood played on Ohio's Buckeye championship eleven of 1935 and was with the co-Buckeye championship Bobcats in 1936. He played in the 1937 Ohio All-Star game against the Cincinnati Bengals and the 1938 All-Star game against the Cleveland Rams. He has been a successful high school coach at Oak Hill, Kenton, and Central High in Columbus. A Navy man, like his colleague, he served on the football staff at the Georgia Pre-Flight School. Later, at the Naval Air Training Station at Pensacola, Fla., he was head scout for the Navy gridiron team and was in charge of French and British cadets.

Mrs. Mary Jane Hitchcock, housemother for the Ohio University chapter of Alpha Xi Delta sorority for the last 15 years, resigned her position last June and is now making her home with Dean of Women Irma E. JOHN Y. C. ROTH, '41x. Lieut. Roth is now at Howard Field, the Caribbean Air Command fighter base. The Ohioan completed pilot training and received his commission just five days after Pearl Harbor Day in 1941. He attained the rank of captain in the Pacific area where he was awarded eight different decorations. His new rank of first lieutenant is in the Regular Army.

MYRON D. THOMPSON, who is teaching industrial arts in the high school at Pleasantville, N. Y., is president this year of the Pleasantville Teachers Association and is vice commander of his American Legion post as well as editor of The S. O. S., the post's bi-weekly bulletin. He is also active in the local Lions Club.

Mrs. Ronald H. Good (ALBERTA GREENLEES) is living in Ravenswood, W. Va., where her husband is on the high school faculty. Mrs. Good resigned as home economics instructor at Beverly, Ohio, when her husband returned from India early this year.

The Marcel Rodd Company of Hollywood and New York has recently published a volume of satirical drawings by JANE EAKIN of New York City. The volume bears the title, "I Do All The Work Around Here," and has a foreword by the well known comedian, Danny Kaye. Of the artist-cartoonist the publisher writes: "Her pen-point is fine and penetrates deeply. On the surface her drawings are clever, but closer examination reveals a brilliant sense of social consciousness and awareness of her neighbors as she considers Love, Art, People, and general Confusion. I Do All The Work Around Here has whimsicality, cynicism, gawdety, and a little cruelty too. Above all, it has wit and talent." Continuing, the publisher states that "Danny Kaye's poetic foreword provides the perfect foil for Miss Eakin's sardonic humor. She, in turn, insists that he is one of her cartoons come to life. This Mr. Kaye violently denies, stating that 'of human kindness she has no milk.' He claims he has been heckled into hack-writing, but we have an idea that he secretly enjoyed doing it." Besides her work as an artist, Miss Eakin is teaching in the New York Fashion Institute. She is a former art instructor at Wooster College and has taught in New York's Museum of Modern Art.

Josephine Steiner
(See Class of 1934 Notes)

Dr. J. A. Hess, professor of German at Ohio University, received a card last June from LIEUT. CHARLES J. ROSKA post-marked Nuernberg, Germany, on which was the message "I am now in charge of the medical care of the former Nazi chiefs of state and find it very interesting." Lieut. Roska graduated in medicine from Western Reserve University in 1944. If still in Germany at this time it can be assumed that his medical duties have been somewhat lightened by recent events.

WILLIAM A. MECHEM, a leading shoe merchant and an active civic worker in Athens, is president of the Athens Community Concert Association. The association has recently concluded a successful membership campaign as a result of which five, and possibly six, concerts will be held this winter in Alumni Memorial Auditorium. The numbers will include James Melton, tenor; Nadine Conner, soprano; and the National Symphony Orchestra of Washington.

With merely a handful of players, FRED A. SWEARINGEN, just out of the Navy Air Corps (with a brilliant record, incidentally) and in his first year of coaching, has seen The Plains High School Indians win five contests in their six-game schedule this fall.

DR. EARL H. STANLEY, who completed his internship in a Springfield (Ohio) hospital last July, is now on the medical staff of the Veterans Administration Hospital in Danville, Ill. He is a graduate of the University of Louisville Medical School.

LEE JACKSON is a first-year student at the University of Rochester Medical School this fall. She is one of a number of Ohio U. pre-med grads currently enrolled or who have recently been in attendance at this New York school. Others there now are ROBERT E. NYE, FRANK C. MULDON, and ARTHUR SAKAMOTO, all three of the Class of 1943.

GRACE LESLIE, M.S. (see picture), a former assistant dean of women and head of Howard Hall at Ohio University, accepted a position this fall as dean of women at Heidelberg College, Tiffin, Ohio. Miss Leslie received her baccalaureate degree from Oberlin College. She was active in musical circles in Athens and in the picture is seen accompanying one of "her girls" in a Howard Hall song fest. Her master's thesis was based upon a study of the growth and development of the Women's League and the Men's Union at Ohio University.

HELEN RUTH WILLIS is teaching social studies in the Mountain View School, El Monte, Calif., and residing in Los Angeles.

RICHARD A. REITER is engaged in a pre-med course at the University of Wichita former sports editor of the Athens Messenger, is now director of publicity at Muskingum College.

ROBERT T. WAUBAULT, ex. last year president of Ohio University's Theta Chi chapter is now a traffic manager with the Transcontinental & Western Airlines. He has an office in the airlines building on 42nd Street in New York City.

Mrs. Charles J. Boocks (THELMA MOWERY) is teaching home economics in Libby High School, Toledo. Her husband is a veteran-student at the University of Toledo. Their marriage was reported in the October Alummas.

DOROTHY WINTERS is holding a secretarial position with the General Electric Co. in Boston, Mass.

MARJORIE AHLQUIST is the advertising production manager and copywriter for the Home Store in Dayton.

Mrs. Thomas G. Andrian (RUTH ANN GROVER) who taught last year in the high school at Alliance, is teaching this year in the high school at Chauncey. She and her husband, a veteran-student at Ohio University, are living in Athens.

ELIZABETH BELHAN is a teacher in East High School, Erie, Pa.

Unintentional and most unfortunate was the omission of the report last year of the birth of a daughter, Susan Kay, to ALFRED KENZELL, ex. and Mrs. Kuenzli (NORMA GIBBS, '43), 3446 E. 50th St., Cleveland. Susan Kay arrived April 12, 1945. Her daddy, a Marine Corps veteran, is now in the advertising business in Cleveland.

Ann Arbor, Mich., where she has just entered upon a position as senior service librarian at the University of Michigan.

An idea conceived while a student at Ohio University and developed during his service as an Army officer in the Pacific has finally been realized in concrete form by RICHARD P. BANKS with the opening of a new sporting goods store at 5 N. Court St., Athens, on Sept. 18. The idea was of a shop handling only sports goods equipment for men. The extent of its ultimate development is partially illustrated by the picture on page 18. Dick, on the extreme right, is to be seen displaying his wares to a customer. The interested customer on the left is FRANCIS B. FULLER, '38, local photographer. He has been successful in obtaining an unusual number of hard-to-get items of merchandise. The new businessman married SUZANNE DANFORD, '42x, of Athens, just before graduation in 1943, and is the son of Mark Beal Banks who served as coach and director of athletics at Ohio University from 1913 to 1918. The former athletic director is now a real estate agent in Oneonta, N. Y., where, as an avocation, he coaches the football team of Harwick College.

RUTH DRISCOLL HALLMAN, with her husband, Philip E. Hallman and their daughter, Kathy Jo of New Concord, were Ohio University visitors on October 12, coming especially for the Muskingum-Ohio U. football game. Mr. Hallman,

Mrs. Raymond F. Balfour
(See Marriages)

DORIS BROWN was one of 50 students in the United States to receive honorable mention in the 1946 Junior Bazaar Design Contest. She is now art editor of The Enthusiast, a publication of the big Lazarus store in Columbus. Miss Brown had her first training in art under the guidance of FLORENCE HENNSIS, '25, art supervisor in the Marietta city schools.

LOIS HAINES is secretary to the director of the School of Home Economics at Ohio University, having succeeded MARY ANN MCKAY, '41, who is now holding a secretarial position at Ohio State University.

JEANNE REDEL, a journalism major, is employed with the State Automobile Mutual Insurance Co. in Columbus as secretary to the director of personnel and assistant editor of the Pine Tree, the firm's monthly magazine.

HOWARD POND, JR., is teaching manual art in the high school at Shadyside, near Bellaire. He and Mrs. Pond have a one-year-old son, Howard, III.

are Capt. Mark Treat, Air Corps, and Lieut. James Skinner, Quartermaster Corps.

Capt. Treat flew B-26's with the 70th Bomb Squadron during the war, taking part with his unit in the Battle of Midway and the Battle of the Solomons. After a short course at the Command and General Staff School, Ft. Leavenworth, he went to Lowry Field as assistant director of Training and Operations. From Akron, he is a graduate of Kent State University.

With the Quartermaster Corps of the 20th Bomber Command, Lieut. Skinner served in the CBI Theatre 32 months, returning to the U. S. for advanced quartermaster training. A graduate of Ohio State University, Lieut. Skinner is from Columbus.

First Postwar Homecoming

was judged the winner in the men's division.

Only the fraternities participated in the house decoration contest, with Theta Chi receiving the judges' nod. Certainly not to be dismissed without a second look, however, was the Delta Tau Delta house decoration.

Margaret Sinclair, Cleveland sophomore and representative of Pi Beta Phi sorority, was chosen Varsity "O" Homecoming Queen to reign at the annual homecoming dance Saturday night in the Men's Gym.

The massed Miami and Ohio bands participated in the pre-game flag raising ceremony. Between the halves President John C. Baker greeted the "homecomers" following a presentation by the Alumni Secretary. The two bands shared the remainder of the intermission executing a number of clever formations and playing their alma mater songs.

Several Homecoming Day pictures not available for this issue will appear next month.

Mary Ann to RAY E. KEESY, '37, and Mrs. Keesy (GENE GORDON, '37), 549 Oak St., Columbus. Mr. Keesy is teaching part time in the speech department at Ohio State University, while working for a Ph.D. degree.

David Cameron to ROBERT L. HARTFORD, '36, and Mrs. Hartford, 1900 Inglewood Dr., Rocky River, June 7, 1946. Cammie's daddy is assistant manager of research and promotion for the Penton Publishing Company and secretary of the Ohio University Bobcat Club in Cleveland. Paternal grandparents: W. A. HARTFORD, '13, 2-yr., and Mrs. Hartford (INEZ LOGAN, '15x), Rocky River. BETTY HARTFORD, '40, is an aunt of the new arrival.

Bonnie Jeanne to WILLIAM F. BROWN, '41, and Mrs. Brown (JEANNE WILSON,

Cheryl Ann Brown

'41), 23148 Marion Rd., North Olmsted, Sept. 3, 1946. Mr. Brown, a former Army weather officer overseas, is now with the flight advising section of the weather bureau at the Cleveland Airport. The little cutie pictured above is Cheryl Ann, Bonnie Jeanne's sister, who is now almost three years of age.

Diane Louise to D. WILLIAM EVANS, '40, and Mrs. Evans (HELEN TOBEY, '42), 965 Oxford Rd., Cleveland Heights, Sept. 15, 1946. Mr. Evans is an engineer with a Cleveland tool manufacturing concern. Little Diane has about as many Ohio University "connections" as could be. To name a few—her paternal grandparents are RHYS D. EVANS, '09, and Mrs. Evans (MARY CHAPPELEAR, '09), Akron; two of her uncles are ROBERT B. EVANS, '34, Toledo, and EDWIN B.
